Taking Quadrant

This is hard for almost everyone, and often feels odd, elusive or scary. Taking is receiving the gift of access, a true gift. In order to receive this gift, you must stop trying to ‘give’.

To Take:
1. Ask your partner what their limits are and abide by them, completely.
2. Take the time to notice what part of them you would like to feel.
3. Ask ‘May I...’ not ‘would you like?’
4. Use your hands to feel, not to serve.
5. When you start trying to give to them, remind yourself it is for you.
6. Say thank you!

Essence: Taking action for your own benefit.

Allowing Quadrant

This is very easy for some, very hard for others. It depends on knowing you have a choice about how you are touched. Allowing is also a form of giving.

To Allow:
1. Take time to consider your limits.
2. Ask yourself: Is this a gift I can give with a full heart?
3. If you are hesitant, it’s one of these:
   - you need more information
   - it’s a ‘No’ waiting for you to hear it
   - if you set a certain limit, it would be a yes; ask yourself what that limit is
4. Say you’re welcome!

Essence: Allowing others to take action, while keeping your own limits.

Serving Quadrant

Most people call this ‘giving’, but this is not the only kind of giving. Allowing is also a form of giving.

To Serve:
1. Set aside what you prefer (including the response you hope to see).
2. Ask what your partner wants – and wait for the answer. Making spaciousness for their choice is the most important part.
3. Decide if you are willing and able to do that. Honor your limits. Ask yourself: Is this something I can give with a full heart?
4. If it is, do so as best you can.
5. Say you’re welcome!

You contribute to their experience. The gift you give is your action.

Essence: Taking action for the benefit of others.

Accepting Quadrant

Most people call this ‘receiving’, but this is not the only kind of receiving. ‘Taking’ is also a form of receiving.

To Accept:
1. Put yourself first. Set aside what you are OK with. Go for wonderful.
2. Take all the time you need to notice what it is you would like. This is the most important part, and often the hardest.
3. Ask as directly and specifically as you can. No hinting, no maybe’s, no ‘whatever-you-want-to-give’.
4. Stop trying to ‘give’ your giver a good experience. That’s their job.
5. Change your mind any time (and ask for something different).
6. Say thank you!

Essence: Receiving the benefit of the actions of others.

2 questions, each one an offer.

Offer #1: How would you like me to touch you for 3 minutes? (Please scratch my back, kiss my neck, bite my toes, hold me, etc.)

Offer #2: How would you like to touch me for 3 minutes? (May I feel your arms, explore your back, play with your hair, etc – Do not offer to ‘give’ anything, like a massage. This is for your pleasure.)

When you make the offer, you are giving a gift. Negotiate as needed. Never give more than you are happy to give. When you make the other offer, you are giving a pleasure - play with your hair, etc – do not offer to ‘give’ anything, like a massage. This is for your pleasure.

The two factors overlap like this:

Consent (your agreement) creates the quadrants. Without agreement about who it is for, the quadrants do not exist.

The point is to distinguish between them.

The Two Rectors overlap like this:

You are doing and it’s for you
You are doing and it’s for them
They are doing and it’s for you
They are doing and it’s for them

Each of the four represents a different aspect of yourself and will ‘shift’ you.

The point is to distinguish between them.

Ask yourself: Who is this for? Go slowly, start with short turns and neutral (non-sexy) body areas.
